...Helps to AVOID MANY COLDS altogether

VICKS VAPORUB
for
Nose & Throat

... New Formula
BY MAKERS OF
VICKS VAPORUB
Remarkably Successful

Quick!—At first nasal irritation, snifle or sneeze—just a few drops of Vicks VapoRub. It stimulates the functions provided by Nature—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages. Used in time, Vicks VapoRub helps to avoid many colds entirely. Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head or nasal catarrh) Vicks VapoRub penetrates deep into the nasal passages, reduces swollen membranes, clears away clogging mucus—brings comforting relief.

Better CONTROL OF Colds

This new aid in preventing colds, together with Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment for colds, forms the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—to help reduce their number and duration. The Plan is explained in each Vicks package.

The ENERGY VALUE of Cod Liver Oil PLUS SPEEDY ASSIMILATION

With emulsified oils digestion begins at once in the stomach. Ordinary oils must first combine with the pancreatic juices—to form an emulsion—before they can be assimilated.

Scott's Emulsion is more quickly and easily assimilated than plain Cod Liver Oil because it is already emulsified. Scott's Emulsion is rich in body-building hypophosphates of lime and soda. PLUS values you get in Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

THE TENDERFOOT

By
GEORGE B. ROONEY
Author of "The Coronado Trail",
"The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen near to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided that even what was happening for himself—not as Gerald Keene, half owner of the Four-Chase Ranch, but as Duro Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward west-end outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector 10' high, is determined to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had promised him, in the discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He was broken, Spurr men, rushing four-class cattle and protesting against it.

Spike Goddard and Sam Dustin, fearing the old prospectors may tell others the mine has been seen as to the branding of Carr's cattle, plot to get him to show them the location of the mine and then to kill him.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Kane nodded. His conscience was by no means clear. He knew that he had spoken ungenerously and he remembered how interested Raynor had been.

"Of course Spike and I are going to stake you," said Dustin. "But we've got to know more than we know now. A big mine'll cost money. We've got to be able to show the veins to the capital. See? When can you take me up there to see the place?"

Kane eyed him but Dustin's face was impassive. After all his demand was only reasonable. No one could expect men to "buy a pig in a poke."

"Give me a couple of days," he said. "Then I'll hike back up there and take you with me. I'll show it to you. Just you and me, hey?"

"That's all. We'll take a pack-pony for grub. I've got some business to tend to before I go."

He stopped Spike Goddard midway between the house and the corral and told him the plan.

"You mean you're going out into the hills with that old rat by yourself? No one else? Then he don't come back? That's taking a damn God awful chance," said Spike who knew. But Dustin frowned him down.

"I mean that I'm going out into the hills with old Dad Kane to look into a prospect with him. I want Peyotl Gregg to go with us. If any accident should happen to Kane, it will not be my fault, will it? I'll be leaving with him on Monday. In the meantime, Spike, I've got some of old Joe Carr's paper. He borrowed twelve thousand from old Pogram on a note and the old Shiplock was damned eager to sell it to me. We're sure as good as got old Joe Carr's half of the Four-Chase, sure."

"Yes! Well, so. Gerald Keene owns the other half, don't he?"

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it. You tell Peyotl Gregg to make up a couple of packs and to be ready to hit the trail first sign of light Monday mornin'." See?

Spike glanced at him pityingly. "Old man Kane's as crazy as a hoot-owl," he said. "All prospectors are crazy. Peyotl Gregg ain't got brains enough to fill a water-bag. Ain't you got out into the hills with a string of jackasses and two crazy men. I'm glad I ain't got in Kane's place."

Dustin looked long at him and turned away.

"In that case you're sure playin' in luck," he said.

Why at 40 You Think You're "GROWING OLD"

It's Frequently Just an "Idea." Not "Old Age," And According to Scientists, May Be Something No More Alarming Than A Touch Of Old Stomach

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're not. Have headaches. Stomach upsets. Dizziness. Nausea.

Well, scientists say the cause, in a condition of the stomach. The thing to do is simply to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed.

Try this. You'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets Made in Canada.

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—20 in one of all sizes everywhere. Each tin has a full explanation of the use of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

CHAPTER V.

The Houn-glass ranch backed in the red-hot sunlight and the four men playing cards in the strip of shade behind the bank-house granted appreciation of the game and of the hot wind that bent the mosquito tops. Lee and Spears and Baine were playing Mississippi River poker with a pack of twenty cards while Fort, the fat old ranch cook, assisted with advice from the sidelines. At a sudden noise he rose erect and stared down the trail.

"My God, fellers," he said in an awed tone, "look at Montgomery-Ward, will yuh..."

They looked. For a brief moment they were stricken dumb. Then they laughed as a gray pony, hardly visible beneath its load of stowed equipment, turned in at the gate and moved slowly toward the corral. His ill-adjusted saddle made the pony seem to move sideways and the four continued to stare as the rider dismounted and moved stiffly toward them. No word came from the poker players as the man came up to them.

In non-commissioned silence they regarded him.

"Any chance for a job here?" he asked.

Silent Lee jerked a finger at the ranch-house.

"Old man Carr's in there," he said. "He does his own hikin' an' firin'. See him if you want a job."

"Thanks..."

The man strove over to the house and up the wooden steps. They saw him knock at the door; they heard a loud voice shout "come in" and they saw the newcomer drop his hat at the doorman before entering.

"Southern bred man," quoth Baine; "but, my God, feller! Have we all got to sleep in the bunk-house with that?"

"Uh-huh! I reckon so. You know how hard we are for men. Old man Carr's hirin' anything that wears pants. Look at Lee..."

Lee started as though stung and regarded him passionately.

"Here he comes back," said Spears. "Reckon he's hirin'."

As the newcomer strode back to them they examined him more carefully.

Beautifully tanned boots adorned with silver-lined Mexican spurs covered his feet. Immaculate white gaiters, which covered his blue denim pants... That was as it should be... A blue silk shirt lay open at the neck where its gap was filled with a scarlet neckerchief. A four-inch alligator's skin belt carried a row of shining brass cartridges and an opera-budger, in which lay a heavy six-gun with a walnut handle. Lee noted three new notches filed across the wood and he grinned. Fort alone took one look at the man's face that was tanned to the color of a young peacan nut and looked puzzled. That face did not agree with the blatant nervousness of the equipment. The mouth was wide and mobile, the nose had just a touch of the aquiline; enough to give character to the face.

No two men ever quite agreed about the eyes. They were certainly slaty-gray with sparks of hazel light in them. But the man's eyes had the sort of a sort of dancing, playful light that might be deceptive. He swept off a twenty-gauge Stetson and half-nodded.

"My name's Stone, gentlemen," he said quietly.

"Spell it with an S I reckon," said Baine who passed as the bunk-house man.

"No, sir..."

"The man's eyes lit a little and he half-grinned. 'I've always spelled it with a U...'

"UB, you know! You-be-damned Stone!"

"Mr. Carr says I'm hired."

"All right, Mr. You-be-damned Stone. Pitch your war-bag in the bunk-house. You got another name?"

"Two of 'em. But I reckon Stone's enough. Outside they call me Duro."

"That means hard, huh?"

"Ain't no meaner name Stone..."

Started in Curious Way

British House Of Commons Burned Hundred Years Ago

A hundred years ago, on Oct. 16, 1832, the House of Commons was burned down. The great-grandfather of the present Lord Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, personally took the lead in the fire. He was then M.P. for Nottingham.

He climbed on the roof to direct the home, in spite of the smoke, heat, and noise and motion loud flowing around him. He was begged to come down, but did so only two minutes before the whole of the roof collapsed.

The fire started in a curious fashion. Until 1827 it was the practice of the Treasury to issue warrants "tallies" as acknowledgments for loans to the government.

Tallies were made by splitting a strip of wood in two, one part being retained by the treasury and the other by interest issued to the lender, who returned it when he was repaid his loan.

It was the custom to store discharged tallies in the cellars of the House of Commons, and it was among them that the fire broke out. Paper acknowledgments were substituted for tallies in 1827. News of the Police of Springfield, Missouri, used a newspaper want ad to trap a house prowler who had stolen an electric sewing machine. The ad read: "Will exchange model T Ford for an electric sewing machine." The prowler "fell" for the ad and promptly showed up at the home of a city detective who placed him under arrest and recovered the sewing machine for its owner.

THE WHEAT SURPLUS

The world's "carry-over" of wheat since 1928 has been about 1,100 million bushels; year instead of a normal of 625 million. Authorities estimate that by August 1st next the "carry-over" will be reduced to a figure between 725 and 825 million, or still show over 100 million bushels more than normal. A great shortage of coarse grains, however, is apparent throughout the world. Some expect that a substantial part of the world's wheat "carry-over" will be used to replace coarse grains. If this should occur, no doubt, wheat prices will tend to rise—otherwise they may not do so due to low purchasing power of European bread-eating people.
